Reviews

The book is great and fantastic. It is written in straightforward words and phrases rather than difficult to understand. You won't really feel monotony at any time of your respective time (that's what catalogues are for regarding should you question me).

Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Juvenile Instructor, Vol. 29: November 1, 1894 But the great military roads of the empire were by no means confined to the rich country between the snowy Alps and the blue Mediterranean; they stretched away through forest and plain, across bounding river and smiling valley almost to the northern ocean, and from the headwaters of the Danube to the shores of the turbulent Atlantic. So also with their baths. Cleanliness must have been held in high esteem by this stout soldier empire; for not only in Rome, where senators and patricians might lave their tender, well-fed bodies in perfumed water rippling in costly marble or bejewelled pools, but also at the furthestmost outposts of the empire, the public baths were as much a feature of their permanent settlement as were the fortifications of their camp. Thus, while we find crumbling Roman towers at Mayence and in Brittany, and Roman roads in Burgundy and the Black Forest, and Roman coins and silver plate in Hesse and even in Devonshire, we also find the well-preserved ruins of Roman baths in Paris, in many of the half-forgotten towns of Spain, in the fine old cathedral city of Treves, and in the beautiful little town which the artist has here depicted, Baden, in the Duchy of Baden and the Empire of Germany. It would have been very strange if the invaders, whose mighty military road through Germany may still be traced along the Black Forest, had overlooked the natural resources and beauty of this most typical of wateringplaces. It was almost in their direct way, for here were warm and medicinal springs grouped at a point that might...
